Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 17 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A cloudier day, with some showers.

Today:
It will be a dry and bright start, with some sunny spells. However, it will turn cloudier from the northeast, with some showers during the afternoon. These should mostly clear by the evening. Generally mild. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
A mostly cloudy night, with perhaps the odd shower likely, especially at first. Otherwise, it will be a largely dry night, with occasional clear spells. It should stay frost-free. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Thursday:
A largely dry and cloudy start to Thursday. However, some outbreaks of rain are likely to arrive from the northeast later in the day. Breezy and feeling a little cooler. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Drier and brighter on Friday, after a cloudy and damp start. A chilly and bright start on Saturday, before turning cloudier through the day. Dry and mostly cloudy on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.